Conference Theme

On June 28, 2012, the Supreme Court of the United States held in National Federation of Independent Business v. Sebelius that the 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act is a constitutionally valid exercise of Congress’ Taxing and Spending power. This holding, rather than definitively settling all issues pertaining to health care financing and delivery in the United States, instead raises or leaves open a wide variety of still-controversial legal, ethical, financial, political, and organizational questions about the future of health care in this country. An expert and experienced cohort of speakers representing an array of disciplines and perspectives will help the audience identify and grapple with the most important legal and ethical challenges awaiting them as professionals and as citizens as American society in the coming years seeks to implement the PPACA or alternatives to it.

Disclosure and Conflict of Interest Resolution

All conflicts of interest of any individual(s) in a position to control the content of this activity will be identified and resolved prior to this educational activity being provided. Disclosure about provider and faculty relationships, or the lack thereof, will be provided to learners.
