

MARGARET ASHMORE, MSW
Biographical Sketch

Margaret Ashmore, MSW is a Teaching Professor at the Florida State University College of Social Work, where she instructs both graduate and undergraduate students. Her interests include women's issues, family therapy, crisis intervention, social work supervision and education, and the use of storytelling and the arts in social work practice.

Margaret is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker in the state of Florida. She practiced in the Tallahassee community for 28 years, providing counseling and psychotherapy to individuals, couples, families, and groups. In addition to her faculty position, Margaret works as a consultant, facilitating workshops and advising agencies and organizations. In her years providing psychotherapy, Margaret deeply appreciated the courage of her clients in sharing their life stories and she believes in the role of personal and community stories to heal and empower individuals and groups.
