Fortifying the Dean’s Fund
So when you buy a paver or a bench, exactly where does that money go, and why is it so important? It goes straight into the Dean’s Fund, where it pays for a variety of activities such as student travel, staff development, special publications, recruitment and retention activities, conferences and other extracurricular events.

The fact is that state resources cannot be used to cover many such activities. That’s why colleges at public universities develop funds that have more flexibility. At the Florida State University College of Medicine, the dean gratefully allocates such funding to meet the high-priority needs of the college, its students, its faculty and its programs.
Say It With Pavers
The walkway surrounding the College of Medicine courtyard is lined with personalized brick pavers from supporters of the school. Those pavers inscribed with names, thank-yous and congratulations not only provide financial support for the college’s mission but also create a timeless memorial to those honored by the inscriptions.

Help pave the way for the future of medical education and pay tribute to a graduate or faculty member – or perhaps the parents who helped cover the cost of medical school. For $250, a 4-by-8-inch brick paver includes a three-line inscription with a maximum of 20 characters per line. An additional $50 donation buys you a take-home replica of your memorable paver.
